

NSW STATE ELECTION

Saturday March 23

Pre-Poll Campaigners

Pre-Poll campaigners have been out in strength in Ryde and Lane Cove in particular where intensive campaigns have been lodged between Liberals and Labor in Ryde and between Liberal and Independent in Lane Cove.

In Ryde sitting Liberal MP Victor Dominello is being strongly contested by Labor's Ryde mayor Jerome Laxale and in Lane Cove Liberals Anthony Roberts is being challenged by former Hunters Hill mayor and past Liberal Party executive member Richard Quinn standing as an Independent.

Statement by Richard Quinn in response to recent misleading Electoral Material

Residents of Hunters Hill recently received a letter from Pamela Alvarez, dated 17 March 2019, which makes several false and misleading claims. In the letter, Ms Alvarez has failed to disclose her longterm membership of the Liberal Party. The letter was simply 'authorised by C. Stone' - Mr Chris Stone is the State Director of the Liberal Party (NSW Division). This electoral material does not disclose that it was authorised, funded and distributed by the Liberal Party (NSW Division).

Two issues are raised in the misleading letter from Ms Alvarez - overdevelopment and remediation of a contaminated site in Nelson Parade. I have a proven and documented record of opposing overdevelopment and poor planning legislation. Similarly, I have maintained a consistent position of an expeditious and full remediation of the contaminated Government-owned site in Hunters Hill, and not onsite encapsulation of hazardous material.

I will not be controlled by any political party nor influenced by political lobbyists. I strongly believe in transparency and full disclosure of government. Whilst clearly articulating my position on key issues, I will continue to act with integrity and treat all candidates fairly and honestly.
